On 25-26 May 2012 the first Security Congress took place in Athens. The two-days event gathered more than 380 delegates. Angelos Agrafiotis, Chairman of the ASIS Aegean Chapter, invited Andrew Williams, CPP, Senior Partner of the Temi Group to give a presentation entitled "Unified control centers, the future of integrated and interoperable security". On the occasion of this event, Mr. Agrafiotis also gave a presentation on "Terrorist attacks and the importance and necessity of V.I.P executive protection". Both presentations were very well received and have raised a lot of questions and positive comments.
